FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

“INNER CIRCLE” HONORS FOR ROBERT GALLUCCI OF WILLIAM B. MEYER INC.

Stratford, CT, June 2010 - Robert Gallucci, a leading sales executive at William B. Meyer, Inc., was recently honored with one of the transportation industry’s top awards. He was inducted into the Masters Club Inner Circle at United Van Lines’ national sales and operations conference, held in St. Louis. William B. Meyer, Inc., a 95-year-old Stratford-based company with locations in Windsor, CT and Bedford, NY is an agent of United and offers a full range of residential, commercial, and library relocation services, in addition to related operations in logistics, fulfillment, and records management.

The Masters Club, United’s annual recognition program, rewards exceptional sales achievement in five business segment categories. This year, 124 sales representatives qualified for the Masters Club. Within the Masters Club, a select “best of the best” group – the Inner Circle -- honors the top salesperson in each segment.

Robert Gallucci was recognized for his performance in the “corporate account household goods category.”

“This is such a great honor,” said Gallucci after receiving the award. “I’m grateful to work in a company where I’m given the support to do my best. I’m especially grateful for the support of my colleagues – building customer relationships takes a team effort to deliver on the promise, and we have an unbeatable team.”

Gallucci’s 20-year career with William B. Meyer has demonstrated his qualities. Starting as a regional sales representative in 1990, he earned kudos and results for his honest approach, his responsive customer commitment and his excellent communication skills. Today, as Vice President of Sales, he is a recognized expert on relationship sales, valued for his ability to expand on existing relationships.

“Bob embodies our company commitment of expertise you can trust,” says Tom Gillon, President of William B. Meyer. “We rely on people with qualities like his to maintain our leadership position. In addition to being proud of him, we’re pleased that this recognition further strengthens our long-standing relationship with United Van Lines.”

William B. Meyer is one of the founding agents of United Van Lines. Headquartered in St. Louis, United is a global transporter with a network of 1,000 agents in 135 countries around the world. With its network of trusted affiliates, United is the nation’s largest mover, holding more than 30 percent of the market -- nearly double the market share of the second largest carrier.
